Fulbright Awards for 1982-83

More than 500 Fulbright awards in over 100 countries are available for university teaching and postdoctoral research in 1982-83. Most awards are for 9 to 12 months. Applicants must be accepted Fulbright scholars specifically in the field of anthropology. These opportunities are as follows: Australia: lecturers in anthropology, archaeology, and cultural change in Japan; New Zealand: researchers on technology and culture; Thailand: researchers on archaeological theory and methodology; Indonesia: lecturers on physical anthropology and human evolution; Japan: researchers on social and political change; Madagascar: researchers on ethnography; Netherlands: lecturers on cultural and ethnic minorities; Brazil: lecturers on tribal anthropology; Morocco: researchers on archeology; Turkey: researchers on Anatolian civilizations; and the USSR: lecturers on ethnography.

A booklet describing each of these opportunities and others is available from the Council for International Exchange of Scholars, Suite 300, 11 DuPont Circle, Washington, DC 20036; 202/333-4950. Deadline for applications is the end of the month following the discussion in the Council's newsletter, the Fulbright Announcements.

Advanced Research Fellowships in India

Twelve long-term (6 to 10 months) and 9 short-term (2 to 5 months) research awards are offered to redeemable for up to 12 months, beginning in April 1982. Applicants must be US citizens with at least two years of graduate study. No gender or race restrictions. Awardees will be expected to undertake, during the ten-month period, an independent project involving significant research in India and to submit a report to the Fulbright Commission. Awards are available from the Council for International Exchange of Scholars, 11 DuPont Circle, Washington, DC 20036; 202/333-4978. Applications must be received by June 1, 1981.

Postdoctoral Training in Social Gerontology at UCSF

The Medical Anthropology Program at the University of California, San Francisco, is currently accepting applications for postdoctoral research training fellowships in social gerontology for academic year 1982-83. Awards are contingent on receipt of funding from the National Institute on Aging; notification of funding is expected shortly before application deadlines. Stipend levels range from $13,880 to $17,040, depending on years of prior postdoctoral experience at time of appointment. All awards are subject to the National Research Service Award backpay provisions. Interested applicants should submit the following materials by June 15, 1981: (1) vita; (2) a statement describing the postdoctoral proposal, including a description of the program of study; and (3) a listing of three references.

Fellowship Available for Research on Colonial Williamsburg

A 2-year position as a Research Fellow is now available at Colonial Williamsburg Foundation. The project involves the study and recording of early architectural buildings in the Chesapeake region. Qualifications include skill in architectural drafting, fieldwork experience, and the ability to understand and compare architectural buildings. For further information contact Edward Chappell, Dept. of Architectural Research, CWF, Williamsburg, VA 23185, 804/229-1000, ext. 2307.

American Institute of Indian Studies Fellowships

The American Institute of Indian Studies, a nonprofit organization whose members are American citizens, announces its fellowships for 1982-83. Senior Research Fellowships are awarded to academic specialists who possess the PhD or equivalent, and who are usually engaged in teaching and research within an American institution. Where possible, each Fellow will be formally affiliated with an Indian university. Fellowship periods range from 9 to 12 months. Travel awards up to $500 are available to Fellows for research in India. Faculty Training Fellowships are awarded for research of 9 to 12 months duration to established scholars whose primary academic focus has not been India, but who plan to make India a major element in their future research and teaching. Postdoctoral Study Tour Awards are designed for recent PhDs with specialties in South Asia who have not yet made a research visit to India. Fellowships are awarded to applicants who hold a PhD from an AIIS affiliate and who are willing to return to their home institutions for their formal research projects. Short-term grants are available to teacher-scholars from member institutions for research in India.

Leakey Foundation Awards

The L S B Leakey Foundation supports studies related to human evolution. Priority is given to research into environments, archeology, and human paleontology, "in any or several of the fields...Anthropologists would be eligible for many of these opportunities. Applicants must be US citizens and have appropriate academic and experience credentials. For further information and application materials contact the Council for International Exchange of Scholars, Suite 300, 11 DuPont Circle, Washington, DC 20036; 202/333-4950. Deadline for applications is the end of the month following the discussion in the Council's newsletter, the Fulbright Announcements.

Leaky Foundation Awards

The L S B Leakey Foundation supports studies related to human evolution. Priority is given to research into environments, archaeology, and human paleontology, "in any or several of the fields...Anthropologists would be eligible for many of these opportunities. Applicants must be US citizens and have appropriate academic and experience credentials. For further information and application materials contact the Council for International Exchange of Scholars, Suite 300, 11 DuPont Circle, Washington, DC 20036; 202/333-4950. Deadline for applications is the end of the month following the discussion in the Council's newsletter, the Fulbright Announcements.

Wilson Center Fellowships

The Woodrow Wilson International Center for Scholars seeks outstanding project proposals representing diverse scholarly interests. Preference is given to individuals proposing research that will provide information of potential benefit to policymakers. Projects are expected to deal with subjects of current policy importance. Applications are invited in all areas of study including economics, political science, history, social science, and international relations. Awards are available from the Wilson Foundation, National Institute of Public Administration, Washington, DC 20036; 202/333-4978. Proposals must be submitted by June 1, 1981.

American Institute of Indian Studies Fellowships

The American Institute of Indian Studies, a nonprofit organization whose members are American citizens, announces its fellowships for 1982-83. Senior Research Fellowships are awarded to academic specialists who possess the PhD or equivalent, and who are usually engaged in teaching and research within an American institution. Where possible, each Fellow will be formally affiliated with an Indian university. Fellowship periods range from 9 to 12 months. Travel awards up to $500 are available to Fellows for research in India. Faculty Training Fellowships are awarded for research of 9 to 12 months duration to established scholars whose primary academic focus has not been India, but who plan to make India a major element in their future research and teaching. Postdoctoral Study Tour Awards are designed for recent PhDs with specialties in South Asia who have not yet made a research visit to India. Fellowships are awarded to applicants who hold a PhD from an AIIS affiliate and who are willing to return to their home institutions for their formal research projects. Short-term grants are available to teacher-scholars from member institutions for research in India.